

Tinley Organizations Join Lions In Tree Planting Project and The Plan Is to Plant 4,000

The Tinley Lions Club tree planting project referred to in last week's paper seems to have struck a responsive chord in everyone who has become acquainted with the plan. In response to the Lions Club invitation a representative from every organization and church in Tinley Park, met at the residence of Selby Hirsch on Tuesday evening. There were 20 present.

Plans were discussed and adopted for the solicitation and distribution of the trees which the Lions Club will receive.

Last week it was announced the planting of 2,000 trees would be undertaken. This week we announce 4,000 trees will be planted and why not? When you can plant 4,000 trees for a cost of $140 or two trees for a nickel, how can we resist? Thus 4,000 trees in three years time will be worth over $5,000 and the public would not part with them for twice that amount. The Lions invite every body to join this patriotic army, which will plant 10 million trees in honor of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of the Father of Our Country.

The local organizations represented at Tuesday night's meeting were, The R. N. A., the P. T. A., The American Legion, The Lions Club, The Boy Scouts, The School Board, The R. N. A. Juveniles and The Niagara Girls Club.

Grover Elmore has signified his willingness to purchase 2000 of the 4000 trees Tinley Park will purchase. Mr. Elmore plans to plant these trees in his subdivisions near Tinley Park. This is a very commendable move.

The Lions Club have passed the following resolution regarding the tree planting program:

RESOLUTION

WHEREAS—The Tinley Park Lions Club has been requested to co-operate with the American Tree Association, who in return are co-operating with the Commission approved by Pres. Coolidge, during his term of office, for the proper observation of the Two Hundredth Birthday of George Washington in 1932, and

WHEREAS—This observation is to take the form of planting of 10 million trees by February 22, 1932, throughout the country, and

WHEREAS—The Tinley Park Lions Club, concurs in this plan and commends it, as being a proper and patriotic method of observing the Two Hundredth Birthday of the Father of Our Country and also recommends it to the residents of this vicinity for the foregoing reasons, in addition, that the planting of trees will also beautify our community and enhance its value

THEREFORE—Be it resolved, that the Tinley Park Lions Club will co-operate in fullest measure to this end and pledge themselves to see that at least two thousand trees be planted and that we invite all local organizations and churches and schools to join us in this work and that they appoint a representative to meet with the Lions Club's Tree Planting Committee to formulate a plan for the working out of the details of distribution and planting of the trees.

Respectively submitted by The Tree Planting Committee, A. O. Foskett, Selby Hirsch and Wm. Funk

Henry Bechstein, Jr. Weds Chicago Girl

On March 7th a very pretty church wedding took place when Miss Eileen Frances Anderson of Chicago was married to Mr. Henry Bechstein, Jr., of Tinley Park by her uncle Rev. C. F. Schellhase of La Cross, Wis., assisted by J. J. Hoffman, pastor of Chicago. The church was beautifully decorated with palms and flowers and while the blizzard raged without, it was very beautiful and comfortable indoors.

The bride was dressed in white satin and a lace veil and carried a bridal bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. She was given in marriage by her father, Mr. John H. Anderson.

Miss Vivian Anderson, sister of the bride and maid of honor, was dressed in pale green chiffon and Miss Dorothy Schwerin, cousin of the bride was dressed in pale blue chiffon and Miss Alice Green in orchid chiffon. The bride's attendants wore gold and silver headbands and carried beautiful bouquets of pink roses. The groom was attended by Arthur Brandau best man, Walter Schellhase and Arthur Mitzner.

A very lovely reception was given to the limited number of relatives and friends at the Shoreland Hotel in Chicago.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bechstein, Jr., wish them much happiness and God's richest blessings.

Runaway Boys Held

Ten small boys ran away from a colony in the Oak Forest Infirmary grounds Wednesday and were picked up in Tinley Park Wednesday noon by policeman Harry Uthe. The Infirmary officials were notified and sent a car to get the boys.

Is Mokena A One Man Town?

Have you, the people of Mokena, ever given this matter serious thought? If not, do you not think this is a good time to consider what has been done in the years gone by and see for yourself what this town has accomplished, and the reasons therefore?

Has your present village board consulted you on any important matters pertaining to the welfare of this community? I believe that you will agree with me when I say "at no time has the present board taken the citizens of this village into their confidence whenever they contemplated any improvements of any consequence," but you will find that any improvements in which our citizens are vitally interested have never been taken up with them to ascertain whether they really want these improvements or whether they really benefit the community.

In matters of this character, it seems that only one man has the say and the balance of the board seem to coincide with his opinions regardless of the fact as to whether they are right or wrong. Do you not think that a board functioning as this should be broken up and new timber injected so that it will function to the benefit of all taxpayers and not a selected few.

Why did the present board take up this matter of a sewer system in our village with the engineering firm of Chicago, causing them to formulate plans, looking forward to the near future when this inadequate sewer system would be virtually forced upon our taxpayers without their having any voice in the matter as to whether they wanted it or not. Do you not think that it would have been better for our local board to have first obtained the views of our people than to proceed the way they have, causing all this hard feeling which will take some time to eradicate?

They well knew of the depression confronting us and that installation of this system at this time would work great hardships upon a great number of our citizens, however, they disregarded this fact and have gone ahead with plans to force the system upon us. For reasons unknown to many of us the engineering firm of Chicago is taking a great amount of interest in our local matters and have an attorney representing them in the fight the village board has forced upon the taxpayers.

Two years ago I spoke to a former member of our local board asking him why our board, each year, paid out money for road oil for our streets when this same money could better have been applied to the purchase of crushed stone. Our streets, with the exception of Front street, could have been dressed with this stone. Had this been done Mokena would have had all her streets dressed within the period of five years at the same cost. However, this member stated that the committee handling this matter of oil had a contract with an oil company for a period of years to furnish this oil and there could be no change until that contract had expired.

Does it not seem a more sane plan to abolish the use of oil in our village and gravel our streets so they may be used, in all seasons of the year by our citizens? This use they are denied due to the fact that our street matters are not handled in an efficient manner. To keep on using oil is a waste of money and does us very little good and a great amount of damage to the interiors of our homes. On some of our streets oil is used very lavishly and on others you hardly find a sprinkling and our crossings are flooded.

The four candidates which are running for the coming vacancies on our local board are fully in favor of improvements whereby the majority of our citizens secure a benefit.

They are not in favor of putting something over on the taxpayers without permitting said taxpayers to express their views before acting on any contemplated improvement. They believe this is a proper procedure to take in any matter.

Facts and Figures Are What Count

As the Mokena village election draws nearer, the campaign is getting hotter. The present administration and its friends claim that the village treasury has never been in a better shape financially than now.

Examination of the village records reveals that at present the treasury shows a balance of $1700. The board has paid off a number of bonds and paid running expenses but that is about all that can be said. No immediate improvements of any kind have been made outside of the time and effort spent in getting the proposed $70,000 sewer deal over.

The village records also show that the board levied $500 for oiling the streets but did not buy any oil, and the money obtained from said levy

Orland Auctioneers Plan Community Sale Project

A rather unique plan has been worked out for a community sale by two auctioneers, Charles Erickson and Edward Schmaedeke of Orland township and Fred Yunker, also of Orland. The plan as outlined is that farmers and towns people from any of the surrounding towns from Lockport to Blue Island and south to Green Garden and beyond are invited to bring any live stock, farm machinery, seed grain or any article they wish to sell at the community sale, the place and date of which is to be announced next week. All the articles brought for sale will be sold at auction on a commission basis.

By this method anyone having surplus stock, machinery or any articles have a chance to convert it into cash and the buyers will be able to pick up bargains they could not pick up elsewhere. For further particulars call any one of the following:

Charles Erickson, telephone Mokena 53-M2; Edward Schmaedeke, telephone Orland 54-M2; Fred Yunker 52-W2.

If this community sale plan is a success other sales will be held at certain periods of the year.

Orland Faces Hot Village Election

Orland Park is anticipating a hot village election on April 21 with two tickets in the field. Dr. W. R. Schussler is heading one faction which it is understood are favoring the repeal of the recently passed zoning ordinance and are said to be favoring the installation of a sewer system. The present mayor, Ralph W. Jennings is seeking re-election and his friends point out that he should be returned as he and his administration have done much for Orland Park during their tenure of office.

The tickets and candidates filed are as follows:

PEOPLES TICKET
President, Ralph W. Jennings.
Village trustees: Harry B. Heiting, Herman C. Uthe and Edgar H. Cooper.

CITIZENS TICKET
President, Dr. W. R. Schussler.
Village trustees: George M. Yunker, George Cox and Louis M. Arnold.

S. W. Highway Closed When Bridge Approach Sinks

The recent heavy thaws has caused the approach to the grade separation bridge on the Southwest highway over Route 51 to settle so that it was impossible for cars to get thru and the highway was closed to traffic. This week, Edward Cowan, one of the presidents of the Southwest Towns Chamber of Commerce is reported to have got in touch with the county highway officials and stone was placed on the bad spot the forepart of the week and the highway has been opened again for traffic. The approach appears to be partly on a quick sand bottom as a large part of the material filled in has worked itself out in the form of a small island in the adjoining slough.

Prepare for 159th Street Paving

The Chicago Heights Coal & Co., who have the contract for paving 159th street in this section have been preparing forms preparatory to starting paving work, but the recent snow storms have tied up this work.

Thomas Davidson who has contract for building a bridge on the extension of 143rd street east of Cicero, is preparing to start soon as weather conditions permit.

Tinley Has Two Mayoralty Candidates

From present indications Tinley Park will have a warm, but friendly village election on April 21st. The following candidates have filed for the office of mayor and village trustees: For Mayor, Wm. Mohr and August Habenicht. For village trustees: Christ Mager, Frank Mancke, Frank Hoar, Irvin Bettenhausen and Henry Klepper.

was not used as specified in the appropriation, but was put in the general fund. Likewise the revenue received from the special vehicle tax was put in the general fund, contrary to the ordinance when same was passed, specifically stating the money so derived, was to be used for street purposes.

Therefore, seeing these funds were used for general purposes, there should be a balance in the treasury. Had these sums been spent for the purposes for which appropriated, there would be a very small balance in the treasury.

The taxpayers of Mokena would like to have the present administration show them just what the board accomplished by the "strict economy" practiced during their tenure of office. Mere boasting does not mean a thing, but the actual facts and figures are what counts. Show the results.

RAID STILL AT NEW LENOX

A brick bungalow on the old New Lenox road near New Lenox was raided by deputies from the office of the sheriff of Will County Monday night about 11 o'clock and a small still and a small quantity of alcohol was seized.

Joseph Bacelle, 43 years old and owner of the place and Joseph Belom, 30 years old of Plainfield road were arrested.

The still was brought to the county jail at Joliet together with a five gallon tin of alcohol.

Bacelle and Belom were arraigned before Justice of the Peace Andrew Graham on charges of disorderly conduct. They were released on bonds of $2,000 each, when their case was continued for 10 days.

Two weeks ago an election was held in the Cleveland school district in the Cleveland school, for the purpose of voting on whether or not the present school building should be moved to a site to the east, as offered by C. H. Warning, but the proposition was voted down. There were ten votes for the new site and fourteen against.

It looks from all indications that time will be continued to be flittered away on this project until the Will County bond issue money is all spent and there will be no funds with which to build this connection.

Catholics living in and near Tinley Park will meet at the Community hall on Wednesday, March 25, at 8 p. m., to discuss the formation of a parish in Tinley Park.

The meeting to have been held last Saturday was adjourned, because the Elmore Real State Co., took over the building on account of the storm, and the above date picked for the meeting.

The committee has the names of 30 Catholic families living in the proposed parish.

Mrs. Oestreich passed away last Thursday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Hugh Deadmore 1511 E. Cass St. in Joliet at the age of 82 years. Burial was in Oakwood cemetery, Joliet.

W. N. U., CHICAGO, NO. 11-1931.

Stuart E. Pierson, state director of agriculture; George E. Keys, vice president of the Ridgeley-Farmers State bank of Springfield; and John M. Crebs, banker of Carmi, have been selected by Arthur M. Hyde, secretary of the Department of Agriculture at Washington, to set up a financial plan for the administering of the drought relief for Illinois. They will take the necessary steps immediately for an organization to make the plan effective.

The old Coles county homestead of the Lincoln family has been preserved for future development into a memorial park, the state of Illinois having obtained title to the 86 acres that comprised the farm. The final 18 acres was secured recently and this tract includes the site of the log cabin that Lincoln assisted his father to erect, just prior to his departure for Old Salem where his ascendancy into public life started. The cabin, according to authorities, was exhibited at the Chicago World's Fair in 1893, and then passed out of existence. The farm will be made into a state park.

A plea for an appropriation has been made to the general assembly to make it possible for Illinois to entertain the grand encampment of the G. A. R. for 1933. Past State Commander H. B. Davidson of Springfield, in his statement, says that not many more such encampments will be held, and it is very proper that the last of the veterans of the Civil war should visit the scenes of the early life of their commander before they answer the final bugle call.

Senator Otis Glenn has issued a call for a competitive examination to be held March 14 for the selection of one candidate and three alternates for appointment to the United States Naval academy at Annapolis. Eighteen cities in the state have been designated as places for holding the examination.

At the request of Gov. Louis L. Emmerson, C. Herick Hammond, chief architect, has prepared estimates on the erection of two more additions to the Centennial building. More space is needed for the state workers and the filing of important documents which at present are scattered in various parts of the state house. The completed building would form a hollow square affording plenty of light on all four sides. The estimated cost of the two new additions has been placed at $800,000. It has not yet been definitely decided to ask the present general assembly for the necessary appropriations, but the opinion of those in charge is that the present would be an economical time to start the work.

Mrs. Jessie Brown Murphy, who died recently at Sparta, was one of the generous donors to the endowment fund of Illinois college. Her recent gifts to the college amounted to over $17,000.

President Hoover has made the following appointments to federal positions for the state of Illinois: Frank K. Lemon of Clinton, district attorney southern district, vice Walter M. Province; John P. Barnes, Chicago, judge northern district, a new position; Paul Sharp, Danville, district attorney eastern district, vice Harold G. Baker; East St. Louis; Arthur M. Burke, Champaign, marshal eastern district, vice A. M. Clark; Judge James H. Wilkerson, Chicago, member United States Court of Appeals, vice George T. Page; Anton Czarnecki, Chicago, collector of customs, reappointed.

Running races will open and close the Illinois state fair for 1931, according to an announcement made recently by the superintendent of racing, W. O. Ireland. The card and program has been confirmed by Gov. Louis L. Emmerson and Stuart E. Pierson, director of agriculture.

A state-wide contest in which art students of the public and parochial schools will compete in designing posters to be used for Illinois state fair advertising is announced by the management of the exposition. Gov. Louis L. Emmerson has offered suitable trophies as grand prizes. Rules and proper blanks may be secured from the contest manager, Room 611, State House, Springfield.

Representative Benjamin S. Adamowski of Chicago has introduced a bill in the general assembly providing that the department of registration and education shall hold examinations for notaries public and pass upon their qualifications. Such appointments are now made by the secretary of state with the approval of the governor.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson has issued a proclamation designating April 17 and October 16 as spring and fall bird and arbor days and calling on the citizens of Illinois to consider the conservation and propagation of tree and bird life.

According to a recent report issued by Dr. Andy Hall of the state department of health, cases of communicable diseases are rapidly decreasing. Measles is still very prevalent in some localities, but all other similar diseases are sharply declining.

Director Ralph F. Bradford of the department of conservation states that the water shortage as reported by his staff from various parts of the state, will hamper the fishing all over the state this spring. Low water prevents the taking away of impurities and may cause loss of fish from the influx of oil and other foreign matter into the water.

Bills are before the general assembly providing that taxes in the state shall be paid in semi-annual installments instead of annually as now. Senator Arthur A. Huebsch has introduced two in the senate which provide for the first installment to become due January 1 and become delinquent March 10, the second installment to become due July 1, and delinquent September 10. Representative William Z. Black has also introduced measures in the house carrying the same provisions.

Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom recently ruled that unpaid amounts due on mothers' and blind pensions do not constitute judgments against the county in which the amounts have not been paid.

Representative F. W. Lewis, of Robinson, has introduced a bill in the house to repeal the oil inspection law passed at the regular session of the legislature in 1929.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson says that women "are a new force in politics, demanding better enforcement of laws, improved efficiency and greater economy in government, and the divorce of politics from criminal elements." This statement was made recently in an announcement issued in connection with the observance of "National Business Women's week," March 8 to 15. "Women have made for themselves a definite place in the nation's business structure. It is safe to predict that their participation in our country's financial, industrial and manufacturing activities will increase," the governor said.

The federal government has designated 33 federal buildings in its program for buildings in Illinois. These buildings are scattered over the entire state.

According to Lewis B. Springer, state superintendent of forestry, the people of Illinois are responding in a gratifying manner to the plan to plant black walnut trees.

A large delegation of boosters met state highway officials in Springfield recently and urged the widening of the Dixie highway to 40 feet between Danville and Chicago Heights.

A bill introduced by Representative Roy R. Barnes, of Bushnell, amending the jurors act, adds practicing registered nurses of the state to these exempt from jury service.

A bill pending in the senate and introduced by Senator Arthur A. Huebsch provides for the appointment of a board of examiners to determine the competency of persons applying for certificates as surveyors and their registration in the department of registration and education. The fee would be $25 for registration and $15 for renewal of certificate. It also provides for penalties.

Representative Roger F. Little, of Champaign, has introduced two bills relating to the Supreme court. One would permit the appointment of not to exceed two commissioners of the court for a period of two years, their qualifications to be the same as required for judges of the same court, and fixes their salaries at $10,000 per year. The court may refer cases to them and ask for an opinion from them. The other bill provides that any Supreme court judge elected from any district having a population of two million or more may appoint an additional private secretary.

Dr. W. L. Finn, of Iuka, state senator, and Representative Martin B. Lohmann, of Pekin, have introduced identical bills in their respective branches of the general assembly which provide that no person shall have in his possession, sell, offer for sale, barter, give away, deal in or deliver, any food or drink intended for human use which contains wood alcohol, methanol or methyl alcohol without having the same properly labelled and designating it as poison.

Director Ralph F. Bradford of the department of conservation has secured the services of Steven Hair of Richmond, Va., who will have charge of the quail hatchery at the state fair game farm. It is proposed to hatch quail eggs by means of electric incubators, place the young birds in runways and take care of them until they are old enough to turn loose. It is expected to have a large number of coverts of quail in the growing pens when the state fair opens.

Electric light rate reductions in 450 Illinois communities are proposed in an application filed with the Illinois commerce commission by the Central Illinois Public Service company. A saving of $200,000 to its customers is predicted by the company, which states that the cut consists of one cent per kilowatt hour on the first step of the company's standard commercial lighting rate and the standard room basis residence service rate, with a slight readjustment of the kilowatt hours supplied on the first step for residence and rural resident service.

THE reproduction of objects surrounding us, beginning with the animal, floral, and later conventional designs, is as old as is textile art itself.

Realistic flowers, scrolls, twists and turns, pastoral and love scenes, turtle-doves, interlocked rings, musical instruments and gardeners' tools, all depicted with grace and balance, found their way into textile patterns as far back as history relates.

All of which leads up to the very interesting data in regard to the handsome printed rayon crepe of which the striking frock in the picture is fashioned. When the salesperson calls than contrasted through design. One might correctly describe them as being pieced together, for that is what they are, strips, diamond shapes, squares and triangles of silk, satin, sheer velvet or crepe in multi-colors ingeniously worked in modernistic design.

The scarf pictured seems a strip of black and a strip of white crepe weave together, thus complementing the black and white print which fashions the frock.

For Evening Wear.

Not within the memory of the present generation has the world of fashion been so richly endowed with attention to any of the prints which go to make up this series of patterns, you recognize at a glance the source of their inspiration, which is none other than one of the towering skyscrapers such as is America's proud boast, and which in this instance proves to be the tallest building in the world recently erected in New York.

One marvels at the skill of the artist who can symbolize so colossal a theme as attractively as these new prints portray, achieving effects which are not only exceedingly beautiful, but because of their distinct novelty add zest to the mode. The large designs seem particularly smart. The motifs vary from a striking silhouette beautiful materials. The challenge is to play up fabric elegance to best advantage, which is exactly what our creators of costume-beautiful are doing this season. This is especially true in regard to evening modes which are styled, for the most part, along simplest lines so as to place the emphasis on the loveliness of their materials.

In the exquisite velvet-brocaded chiffons which are so greatly favored in Paris at the present time for evening wear and which are forecasted to repeat their triumphs the summer through, textile art reaches a high note of achievement. The winsome frock in the picture is made of this enchanting material, its pale blue chiffon background brocaded with tiny velvet motifs in a slightly darker tone. Which reminds us that colorists in the style realm are in a mood to play up blue in every possible gradation and combination for spring and summer.

Note with what restraint the gown pictured is fashioned in order that nothing shall detract from the glory of its fabric. A tight silhouette is featured, which is very chic for this season. The biased skirt is raised high at the waist, for waistlines in general are growing noticeably higher. In connection with the new close-fitting lines it is correct for the fullness to begin at the knee as it so gracefully does of the building to a light-and-shadow impression which is especially good looking.

As to the scarf which adds a "touch that tells" to the frock illustrated, it is typical of the present style trend. The dress or suit or blouse which is minus a striking scarf or at least some sort of a "tricky" scarf neckline is the exception this season.

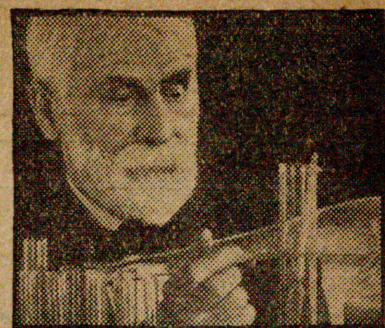

The mission of the new scarfs seems to be to emphasize startling color contrast. In order to accomplish this, materials are seamed together rather in this instance, the bodice is very simple, low cut and square, with just a soft frill of self fabric.

Adorable little jackets of these new velvet-brocaded chiffons will be worn this summer over frocks of monotone chiffon. One can readily see that the vogue for ensembles of this type is destined to become widespread. The brocade is available in not only light blue but in a delectable pink; also pale green.

In this matter of the sewer proposition does our local board tell us what the actual expense will be to the taxpayers? No they do not! They wish the public to think that this first assessment of approximately $70,000 will be all we will have to pay in the next twenty years. They do not tell you what the probable expense will be to complete this system so that everyone will be benefited. They well know that the expense of all kinds will continue to pile up from year to year to maintain this system. Someone will have to be paid to look after the pumps at the terminus of the system, in fact there will be expenses of various kinds which must be met and naturally our taxpayers will have to meet them.

Did it ever occur to our city fathers that the time is coming, and which is not more than two years hence, when our water system will virtually have to be rebuilt to meet the demands of our citizens and which demands are well founded. Most of our streets are now without water at all. In times of fire it is very embarrassing to try to fight a fire without proper facilities to fight with. This added expense of giving us a good water system which this town needs very much together with the sewer system will be a great hardship upon many of our citizens and will be the cause of quite a few having to sell their homes to meet the assessments instead of creating a market for lots and homes.

How would our city fathers expect some of us to use this contemplated sewer system when there is no water on many of our streets at the present time? The installation of an adequate water system to care for this sewer would create an added burden of assessment on our taxpayers. It doesn't look like good business judgment for our city fathers to install a sewer system first and later extend and rebuild our water system. Don't you think it far better to get a good water system first and then as time passes and the demand warrants it figure upon a sewer system which will meet the demands of our citizens in the years to come. A system which in a few years would not have to be taken up and a larger system installed.

Improvements are a fine thing for any town that expects to grow, however, they must be undertaken with the greatest care. Only those should be undertaken which will meet the wishes and demands of the majority and not the minority as it is in this case.

Expenditures have been made by our board in the past which apparently could have been avoided if the proper attention had been given in the way of improvements. These same improvements would not now have to be duplicated to make them satisfactory.

There have been rumors that the aldermen fostering this sewer plan, have been talking to our citizens who are opposing this system, telling them that they are making a mistake in taking the stand they have and that if the sewer is installed in this town, real estate will boom and each owner will be greatly benefited therefrom, and prices for lots will increase and a great many people will come to our town to locate here and buy their lots at an increased price. This statement is rather premature, as the board cannot cite us any town in which there has been a great boom or increase in price for property where the improvements installed have been costly to the former owners. You well know that anyone seeking a location for a future home or investment will ask what are your improvements in your town and what are your assessments against the property you have to sell, which you will have to add to the price you ask for your property.

Conditions as I see them do not warrant the great expense that this town will be put to if our local board put through the improvements they have under consideration. It will pay each citizen to give this matter of sewers a great deal of thought at this time before you decide as to which side of this important question is right and give support to that side at the coming village election on April 21st 1931.

Iowa Brothers Set New World's Record in Ford

IOWA state officials and civic leaders witnessed the establishment of a new world's non-motor, non-wheel stop automobile endurance record recently, when Ralph and Roland Davis, brothers, brought their Model A Ford to a halt at the east entrance of the state capitol in Des Moines after 2,775 hours and 46 minutes of continuous driving.

When Governor Hammill, standing with Walter Ferrell, executive secretary of the Iowa Chapter of the American Automobile Association, gave the signal to stop, the Ford had traveled a total of 47,138.3 miles over all sorts of roads in all sorts of weather and had exceeded by 33,680 miles and more than 2,335 hours the American non-stop endurance record which, theretofore officially recognized, was made by a much heavier car under almost ideal conditions on the Indianapolis speedway last year. In the course of the endurance run, the car, known as "The City of Des Moines," covered practically the entire state of Iowa.

Engineers who examined the Ford at the conclusion of the run asserted that neither engine nor chassis showed evidence of the gruelling strains to which they were subjected during the 116 days of continuous driving. Both apparently, according to the engineers, would have been good for another 50,000 miles or more.

AN APRIL FOOL FEAST

"A LITTLE nonsense now and then, is relished by the greatest men"—somebody said, some time or other. The now and then might well be an April Fool dinner, if we are to agree with that idea, and with Oliver Wendell Holmes who maintained that "the true essentials of a feast are only fun and feed."

Just why April first provides the universal excuse for you to "Be Yourself," nobody knows exactly. But for centuries, throughout Christendom, that date has been the accepted time to play irresponsible tricks on one's neighbors.

Origin of April Fool

Varied explanations have been vouchsafed for the origin, but they all seem to lack the stamp of authenticity. The most convincing theory is this: the French, who used the Gregorian calendar, were accustomed to pay formal visits to friends on April first of this calendar. When the calendar was changed, these visits took place on January first. Mock visits, however, continued to be paid on April first, especially on persons who might forget the new status of things. The French term for this sort of person is "poisson d'Avril," meaning an "April fish"—possibly the fore-runner of the "poor fish" of modern lingo.

If fun and feed are the essentials of our feast, let us plan the fun first. Costume parties are always an asset, because in cap and bells you are free to be as foolish as you feel, without losing any native dignity. A prize for the most foolish costume would be in order.

For table decorations, red and white balloons float over the table give a festive air. If your small son has the popular circus set, an attractive centerpiece can be made of the clown and donkey performing on their miniature chair and barrel, and their ring may be of honest-to-goodness sawdust. For favors, provide toy horns, rattles and bells if you want plenty of noise.

Your favorite novelty store is usually equipped at this season with a supply of laugh-getters in the form of rubber frankfurters that defy the knife, rubber cigars, eggs, etc. An innovation that is providing fun, just now, is a rubber bulk placed under the table-cloth, which on pressure, will rock one's soup plate in a manner most bewildering in this Volsteadian age. Also, a punctured glass is available, which sprays the coat-lapel of your fastidious guest, much to his temporary annoyance and the amusement of the other guests.

And now for the second essential—the feed. Here is an April fool dinner menu which is fool-proof, serves six persons, and is very good to eat:

- Sugared Strawberries
- Cream Corn and Mushroom Soup
- Veal Medallions
- Asparagus with Hollandaise Sauce
- Dressed Cucumber, Radish and Green Pepper Rings
- Bread Sticks
- Frozen Fruit Pudding
- Coffee
- Peppermints
- Salted Nuts

Cream of Corn and Mushroom Soup: Cook one 11-ounce can of corn, three cups of milk, one large onion (sliced), one small stalk of celery and one bay leaf, in a double boiler for fifteen minutes. Strain. Cut fine the mushrooms from a four-ounce can, and sauté in two tablespoons butter for three minutes. Add two tablespoons flour and stir smooth. Add the mushroom liquor slowly, stirring until thick and creamy. Add to the hot milk mixture and cook again until smooth and creamy. Season to taste with salt and pepper, and add one-half cup of cream. Serve in cups.

Tasty Recipes

Veal Medallions: Use the contents of two 7-ounce cans of veal loaf, and cut the meat in six even pieces. Shape and pat carefully with the hands into round flat patties. Add grated cheese to seasoned mashed potatoes to suit the taste, and pile these potatoes in round mounds on the veal patties. Place a thick slice of ripe tomato on top of each patty and sprinkle with salt, pepper and paprika. Bake in a hot oven—400 degrees—for about twenty minutes.

Frozen Fruit Pudding: Press apricots from a No. 2 can through a sieve. Boil two-thirds cup of sugar for three minutes and cool; then add the apricots. Add to this one and one-half cups of heavy cream. Half-freeze this mixture and then add one whole stuffed orange, chopped fine, and a few nutmeats. Continue freezing.*

Although Blue Island, Forest Ridge, Tinley Park and Mokena will exhibit model gardens at the annual flower show of the Garden Club of Illinois, there will be no Midlothian display.

The Garden Club of Forest Ridge will exhibit an old-fashioned garden 10 x 20 feet. Mrs. Chas. Smith designed the garden: Mrs. R. H. Hodgman, Mrs. C. E. Roelle, Mrs. C. Mulholland, Mrs. E. Sharp, Mrs. F. L. Towzer and Mrs. S. G. Ohrvall will install it. Mrs. E. Sharp will also work on the living room arrangement exhibit and Mrs. P. M. Wenstrand is chairman of the Tea table exhibit.

The Mud of Midlothian

Female similes—As all-alone-looking as Mrs. Hermann without her sidekick, Mrs. Czeslawski; or as speedy as Mrs. Stewart of Oak Forest who was at 155th and Cicero when the train pulled into the station and made it—with the aid of Mrs. Orgel.

Hereafter the MUD will charge regular advertising rates—Rody Grill sold Sven Bergstrom the skis immortalized in the MUD.

Rudy has a new gadget for handling eggs. You put the eggs in, set a duflings on the top for hard or soft boiled, turn on the gas and reach the desired state the duflings pops and the eggs are lifted high and dry out of the water.

However, it is said, the first time and only time eggs were poached in the contraption, the duflings turned pink and roared like a Lion.

According to the board, the reported fire loss for last year in Midlothian was much too much.

Blue Island used to have the same trouble. According to John Lerner many houses there were destroyed completely by fire because the fire department could not reach them in time and the fire department could not reach them because the fire horses were out pulling the city's garbage wagon and the horses were out pulling the garbage wagon because the fireman was also the garbage collector.

If Posen had a two man police department the extra man could spend his spare time very profitably learning to direct traffic and untangle traffic jams in Ed. Reimer's yard where about ten thousand chickens make the driveway about as usable as if it were a Crestwood road during an April rain.

If Uncle Casey should run for office this year, one plank in his platform would demand the annexation of Crestwood and the erection of a fence around it.

THE STORY

With his English wife, Catherine, and son, Jeems, Henry Bulain, French settler in Canada in 1749, cultivates a farm adjacent to the Tontour seigneurie. As the story opens the Bulains are returning from a visit to the Tontours. Catherine's wandering brother, Hepsibah, meets them with presents for the family. To Jeems he gives a pistol, bidding him perfect himself in marksmanship.

CHAPTER III

Henri and his wife sat up late with Hepsibah Adams, for this time Hepsibah had come with a set and determined purpose to his sister's home. The trader's countenance had grown stern, and Catherine's cheeks were like those of a pale nun in the candlelight. In Henri Bulain's face were still the cheer and good humor and untroubled equanimity of confidence and faith that Hepsibah, with the darkest pictures he had painted, had been unable to disturb.

They were talking about war. As early as this spring of 1749, the American wilderness had begun to stir with whispers of the impending conflagration which was destined soon to turn the eastern part of the continent into a seething pot of fury and death.

While George the Second of England and Louis the Fifteenth of France were playing at friendship after the peace of Aix-la-Chapelle, France gasping for breath with the flower of her armies buried on European battlefields, and England with her fighting forces reduced on land to eighteen thousand men and to less than seventeen thousand on the sea, the vast colonies of the two countries, working out their own salvations, were steadily and surely and with deadly intent encroaching upon each other.

The stage was set for the writing of the bloodiest and most picturesque pages in American history. Southward from the Richelieu were the bitterest of all the white men's enemies, the warriors of the Six Nations, and northward, sweeping east and west through the Canadas, were the forty scattered tribes who bore allegiance to New France. Behind these savage vassals, on one side, were eleven hundred thousand English colonists holding the sea-coast lands from Maine to Georgia, and on the other less than eighty thousand souls, counting women and children as well as men, to defend and hold the illimitable domains of New France, which reached from the upper Canadas to the Gulf of Mexico and from the Alleghenies to the Rocky mountains.

Of this alarming disparity in power of fighting men, and of the pitiless scourge which he swore would some day sweep through all the country of Lake Champlain and the Richelieu, Hepsibah Adams had spoken at length but with small effect on Henri Bulain.

"Let war come if it must," said Henri. "The heart of New France is set behind an impenetrable wall of rock and forest, and with these ramparts in our favor, eighty thousand will be a match for the million English of the world. As for me, should fighting chance to come—why, I shall be a friend to both sides and strike at neither. For no matter what cause should bring about the strife, I could not strike at the people of my Catherine's blood, nor would she have me turn against my own. So why move from here? It is neutral ground, and we, being neutral, are safely placed here. Oneidas and Mohawks have eaten under our roof as well as Hurons and Algonquins, and when deadly enemies such as these meet thus on common ground, what cause have we for fear?"

A light of pride glowed in Catherine's eyes as she listened to her husband's words, and she added:

"Henri loves the Indians, and I have grown to love them, too. They are all our friends."

"Friends!" sniffed Hepsibah. "Henri, it is because of Catherine and Jeems that I call you a fool. Take them where this danger does not hang day and night along the edges of the frontiers. Take them to the St. Lawrence, if you will, or bring them south into Catherine's country. But do one or t'other, for God's sake, or the day will come when Christ himself cannot save you," and his voice shook with earnestness.

"There will be no war," insisted Henri stubbornly. "England and France have bled themselves white on Continental battlefields, and the peace which was signed only last October will surely not be broken again while you and I are living, for Hanover and Austria have had their fill, as well as the others, and are like two dead men on their backs."

"That is right," nodded Catherine, with a shudder. "I think all fighting is over for many years."

"Fools—innocents!" her brother growled. "I tell you neither George nor Louis will have anything to do with the running of this war until every mile of woods between our colonies and your city of Quebec is red with fire and blood. God love me, it has already begun! French and English traders are fighting wherever they come together along the frontiers, and the hired Indians of one are taking scalps for t'other. Even white men have joined in that pretty game, for Massachusetts has sent out Lovewell and his fifty men to hunt the heads of Indians and French—it makes no difference which, though the order says redskins only!—at a price of five shillings a day plus a bounty for every scalp that is taken; and down in New York country Sir William Johnson counts out English money for human hair, while the French—and you know it, Henri!—are paying a hundred crowns apiece for white scalps as well as red. It's hair the Indians are bringing in instead of fur. And here you sit like a couple of foolish doves with a young one in the nest, your scalps worth fifty pounds a piece, your windows open, your door unlocked, your senses gone."

Catherine rose from her seat and came around to her brother so that she stood behind him with her arms about his shoulders. "Hepsibah, we know this you have told us true," she said, pressing her cheek against his face. "There is terrible murder along the frontiers from which you have come, and that is why Henri has brought Jeems and me into this country of his where are only peace and friendship and no thought of the hideous killings and ugly traffickings you speak about. You have argued against yourself, Brother, for it is you who should move out of strife and danger and come to live with us."

"Together we will have a paradise here," urged Henri.

"And I will find you a wife," added Catherine. "A wife who will love you greatly, and until you have children of your own we will give you half of Jeems."

Hepsibah rose gently out of her arms.

"For Jeems you should change your home to a place where there is a schoolmaster and more for him to learn," he said, catching desperately at a last argument where all others had failed.

"In all of New France and the English colonies there is no better teacher than our Catherine," answered Henri proudly. "In English and French she has given to Jeems more than he could ever have learned in your town of Albany or our college in Quebec; for there, in one place, he would have been English, and in the other, French, while here he is both, like his father and mother, and will never strike at either of the two bloods that are in his veins."

"Of that I am sure," agreed Catherine. "I pray God my Jeems will never be a fighting man."

When Hepsibah went to his cot in the loft, he stood for a moment with his lighted candle beside Jeems' bed where the boy lay sleeping with the cloth of velvet close to his hands, a smile on his lips. Looking down on him Hepsibah thought of Henri Bulain's last words and his sister's prayer, and his lips moved whisperingly to himself. "They can't keep it from you, lad—hope nor prayer nor all their faith. It's coming, and when it comes you'll strike and strike hard, and it's then you'll be what you're bound t'be, Jeems—a fighting man!"

Catherine's breakfast was on the table with the break of sunrise, and Jeems was even ahead of that, helping his father with the chores. The ox was fed and the cart ready for a day's rough travel before his Uncle Hepsibah came down from his sleep. Talk of war and massacre and death had left no shadow in Catherine's heart, and Hepsibah could hear her singing. The sound of her voice made him pause and face the south. His wide shoulders twitched, and he marked the swelling and dips of the timbered solitudes of Forbidden valley, and saw where the Mohawks would enter it.

and where they would come out if his prediction and his fears came true. With the shiver still in his blood, he turned and found Odd standing close behind him, also facing the stillness and mystery of the valley, his nose sniffing the air, and his eyes—as the man's had been a moment before—filled with a steadiness and tenseness of look which had in it a somber and voiceless foreboding.

At the touch of Hepsibah's hand the strain seemed to leave Odd's body.

"It'll bear watching day and night, but specially in that hour of darkness which comes just before the crack o' dawn. Not now, but soon!"

When Jeems went ahead of his father and uncle to Lussan's place, he did not burden himself with unnecessary habiliments of either peace or war. He wore his old suit of brown homespun cloth, with Indian-made moccasins and leggings of doeskin, and on his head was a frontiersman's cap with an eagle feather in it. From under this cap his blond hair fell with its ends touching his shoulders, and with only his bow for a weapon his slim young body was free and buoyant and much handsomer than it had been the previous day with its carefully chosen raiment and warlike accoutrements.

He was filled with exultation mingled with a determined eagerness. He knew he would fight if Paul Tache was at Lussan's place, and what was going to happen in that fight was as definitely fixed in his mind. He was on his way to elevate himself to supreme heights in the opinion of Marie Antoinette Tontour—after he had given her the piece of velvet.

No one was ahead of him when he arrived at Lussan's place. It was nine o'clock, and the sale was not until eleven. Half of a young ox was spit-roasted on a long iron bar and slowly roasting over a red-hot mass of hickory coals. The outside Dutch oven was filled with a huge baking of bread, and benches were set with pewter and snow-white dishes of poplar wood. Lussan was a famous maker of whisky and flip and beer, and three barrels were ready, hoisted on chunks of wood with their spigots down, waiting for the willing hands of his friends and neighbors to turn them.

Jeems hunted out the plow and kettle and loom which his father wanted to buy. While occupied in this way, he came upon a table piled with a hotchpot of articles, and his heart gave a pump when he saw a number of books printed in English. His mind was filled with the thought of his mother's joy if he could take these treasures home to her. There were five of the books, Malvern Dale, Evelina, Telemachus, Eloiza, and Joseph Andrews, a thrilling list of titles it seemed to him, and as quickly as he could he approached Lussan upon the subject of their worth and purchase. Seeing no merit in printed English and small chance for their sale, and being as well a free-hearted man and already warmed by his own excellent beer, Lussan gave them to Jeems.

Overjoyed by this unexpected windfall of fortune, Jeems began to watch anxiously for the coming of his father and Uncle Hepsibah and for the appearance of the seigneur Tontour and whoever might be with him. He placed himself where he could see down the road that came from the Tontour seigneurie, and when at last he heard the auctioneer's voice below him, he felt the sale was about to begin, he felt a somber sinking of his hopes. They lived instantly when three figures on horseback appeared at the end of the half mile of road. The foremost rider was Tontour, the second Paul Tache, and in the third saddle rode a slim, wide-batted little person who was none other than Marie Antoinette Tontour herself.

Boosts Golfer Toward Coveted "Hole in One"

"In the history of the world it is not likely that any game or pastime has been given quite so much serious attention as the game of golf. Half of the men and women who have played golf seem to have invented some sort of a gadget to improve the possibility of making a perfect score and if all the inventions of this character were placed end to end they would probably reach to some place or other and back again several times. An enthusiastic Englishman points with pride to a device which he has invented to enable the player to determine whether he and his club are in exactly the proper position before attempting to bang the ball. He has a small stand containing an electric light operated by a dry battery and this is placed with great care upon the ground. In the head of his club he has a mirror inserted and when he takes up his position in front of the ball and holds his club in exactly correct angle, the light from the lamp will be reflected through the mirror to the eye of the player. Then, if the wind is just right and no one sneezes just as the play is about to be made, the player may make a hole in one, or he certainly will have the excuse that he tried.

JESUS AMONG FRIENDS AND FOES

GOLDEN TEXT—Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you. LESSON TEXT—Luke 10:38-42; 11:14-15.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Among His Friends. JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Test of Friendship. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Friendship With Jesus. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Dealing With Friend and Foe.

1. Jesus in the Home of Friends (Luke 10:38-42).

There is no place where true character is so clearly revealed as at home. 1. His reception (v. 38). Jesus was received by Martha, as she was the head of the home. Jesus must have greatly appreciated the fact that there was one home in which he was welcome.

2. Mary sitting at Jesus' feet (v. 39). She, with fine spiritual discernment, knew that sitting at the Lord's feet and hearing his word was that which would most please him. He was more concerned with opportunity to reveal himself to human hearts than with the eating of well prepared meals. Mary's way of entertaining Jesus was more acceptable than that of Martha.

3. Martha cumbered about much serving (v. 40). Both sisters loved the Lord. It would be impossible to say which loved the more, but Martha was bent on providing a fine meal for him. Because she was trying to do so many things, she was on the verge of distraction, and found fault with Jesus for permitting Mary to leave the kitchen to listen to his teaching.

4. Jesus' answer (vv. 41, 42). (a) He rebuked Martha (v. 41). He did this most tenderly for he knew that she loved him sincerely. (b.) Defends Mary (v. 42). He declared that but one thing was needful and that Mary had chosen that good part which could not be taken away from her. The one thing needful for every member of the race is a heart for the Lord which brings the individual to Jesus to hear his teaching.

11. Jesus Among Foes (11:14-54).

1. Charged with being in league with the devil (vv. 14-23). Being unwilling to receive him as the Son of God and yet unable to account for his mighty works, they declared that he was casting out demons through Beelzebub, the chief of the demons.

2. Refusal to believe his miracles (vv. 29-32). They asked for a sign to which he replied that they would have a sign from heaven in his death and resurrection. He reminded them, however, that their request showed unbelief surpassing that of the heathen queen of the South and the wicked people of Nineveh.

3. Wickedness denounced (vv. 37-54). He pronounced six woes upon those who were opposing him and seeking his destruction; three upon the Pharisees and three upon the lawyers.

a. The Pharisees (vv. 37-41). These he denounced for:

(1) Punctiliously observing minute rites while at the same time breaking the Ten Commandments. They carefully tithed the small herbs of the garden while practicing injustice with their fellow men and withholding love from God. He pointed out to them their attending to these external acts while their hearts were filled with wickedness. It was as absurd as merely washing the outside of an unclean cup.

(2) Desire for public recognition (v. 43). This is a common sin today. Love for titles of respect and positions of prominence is a very common sin.

(3) Feigning humility (v. 44). He compared their hypocrisy to graves which are on the ground and may be stepped upon unconsciously by some one who would thus be defiled.

b. The lawyers (vv. 45-54). The strictures of Jesus on the hypocritical Pharisees aroused the lawyers, one of whom indignantly declared, "Thou reproachest us also." In reply to this Christ pronounced three woes upon them:

(1) For placing burdensome requirements upon the people to which they themselves would not submit (v. 46). Religious rites should not be made irksome. (2) For the murder of God's prophets (vv. 47-51). He showed that their attitude toward him was the same as was shown to the prophets by their fathers. Jesus declared that their guilt was the same as that of their fathers and that their generation would be held responsible for all that the fathers had done. (3) For keeping back the knowledge of God by false interpretations of the Scripture (vv. 52-54).

The Momentous Month of April

GEN. TAYLOR ENTERS MEXICO, APRIL, 1846

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

WHAT has been the most important month in American history? February—because the two greatest Americans, Washington and Lincoln, were born in that month? July—because July 4 gave us the Declaration of Independence? October—because it brought to the shores of America a sailor named Christopher Columbus? November—because the World War came to an end on November 11? All of these months and the events which took place in them are important, of course, but if one were to single out any one month when the greatest number of momentous events in American history took place, that month would have to be April.

For one thing, five of the six major wars in which we have fought began in April and one of them ended in April. Four of our Presidents, Jefferson, Monroe, Buchanan and Grant, and one of our greatest statesmen who just missed the Presidency, Henry Clay, were born in April. Two of our Presidents, William Henry Harrison and Abraham Lincoln, died in April. George Washington, our first President, was inaugurated in April, 1789, and the United States flag, as finally adopted, was first raised in April, 1818.

But the fact that every one of our important wars, except the War of 1812, began in April would be enough. If there were nothing else, to justify calling this "the most momentous month in American history." The first of these was to come in 1775. Just before daybreak on the morning of April 19 a British expedition, sent by General Gage to seize the cannon and military stores collected at Concord by the Massachusetts patriots, appeared in Lexington and there found a party of sixty or seventy Minute Men commanded by Capt. John Parker. Then followed Major Pitcairn's historic "Disperse, ye rebels!" the refusal of the Minute Men, "too few to resist, too brave to fly," to obey, the fatal order of "Fire!" from Pitcairn's lips and the fall of seven patriots. Then on to Concord the British went and at "that rude bridge which arched the flood" was "fired the shot heard 'round the world." The American Revolution had begun on an April morning.

The next April episode in history came in a war which was an American war and yet was not an American war. In 1836 American settlers in Texas were fighting to throw off the yoke of Mexico just as their fathers had fought to throw off the yoke of England. In March, a little less than 70 years after a similar document had been proclaimed in Philadelphia, the Texans issued their own Declaration of Independence. And the Washington who was called to make that declaration good by fighting for it was another Virginian, Gen. Sam Houston. On April 21, 1836, he made it good by defeating the Mexican army under Santa Anna at the battle of Jacinto. So the Republic of Texas came into existence, to have a troubled career for the next eight years and then to be annexed by the United States in 1845 and to enter the Union as a state in December of that year.

When Texas came into the Union she brought trouble with her—not only another element in the slavery problem which was already beginning to divide the nation, but also trouble in the form of a boundary dispute with Mexico, a dispute which the United States immediately inherited. Texas said that her western boundary was the Rio Grande. Mexico said it was the left bank of the Nueces river. When James K. Polk became President he ordered Gen. Zachary Taylor to cross the Nueces and take his post at Corpus Christi, within the disputed territory. In January, 1846, Taylor was ordered to continue to the Rio Grande, which the general did, and on its banks built Fort Brown opposite Matamoros.

Thereupon General Ampudia, the Mexican commander, informed Taylor that he considered his advance an act of war and demanded that he retreat beyond the Nueces. Taylor refused to move. General Arista, Ampudia's successor, then crossed the river and on April 24, 1846, surprised and captured a small party of American troops, killing and wounding sixteen. Although the official declaration of war did not come until May 11, that bloodshed on April 24 started the Mexican war which resulted in adding to American territory the vast stretches of the great Southwest.

But the acquisition of this territory also intensified the dispute over slavery which led at last to the secession of eleven states and the formation of the Confederate States of America. The war clouds were gathering fast when Abraham Lincoln was inaugurated President but the storm did not break until April, 1861. At daybreak on the morning of April 12 the Confederate batteries opened fire on Fort Sumter in the harbor of Charleston, S. C., and the first shell which went screaming across the water was the herald of the greatest civil war in history.

It lasted four years. And again April, the April of 1865, was a momentous month in American history. Big events began happening the very first day. General Sheridan captured Five Forks and took nearly 6,000 prisoners. The capture of that town cut off the line of supply for General Lee, the Confederate commander in chief, at Petersburg. He must give up Petersburg and to do that meant the fall of Richmond. On April 2 General Grant ordered a final assault on Petersburg. It was gallantly defended but the defense was hopeless. The end came six days later at Appomattox Court House when Lee surrendered to Grant. On April 14, 1865, a great tragedy befell the American people—both North and South. Abraham Lincoln was shot down by John Wilkes Booth and died the following morning, April 15.

Thirty-three years later the war drums were again sounding. Down in Cuba there was a rebellion against Spanish rule which had been in progress for three years. The United States government had repeatedly protested to Spain against the cruelties with which its generals were trying to suppress the rebellion and against the losses to American investors in Cuba as a result of the insurrection. Then came the destruction of the battleship Maine in Havana harbor on the night of February 15, 1898, to set public sentiment in the United States aflame. During the next month the war clamor grew louder and President McKinley was forced nearer and nearer to war.

On April 11 McKinley sent a special message to congress in which he declared that "in the name of humanity, in the name of civilization, in behalf of endangered American interests, which give us the right and duty to speak and act, the war in Cuba must stop." On April 19 congress passed a joint resolution which stated "that the people of Cuba are, and of right ought to be, free and independent." It demanded that Spain should at once withdraw from Cuba. Spain rejected this ultimatum and on April 25 congress formally declared war upon that European country. The result was our "100-days-war" with its brilliant naval victories which put the United States in the front rank of the naval powers of the world and the accession of territory in the Far East which brought us into international politics.

It was these same international politics which led eventually to another April war episode. When Woodrow Wilson became President the war-torn republic of Mexico was under the rule of Victoriano Huerta, whom the American President refused to recognize as the rightful Mexican president. Although many Americans believed it was "time to go in and clean up Mexico," the President decided that a policy of "watchful waiting" was the best policy. A crisis came in April, 1914, when some sailors from an American battleship landed at the wrong place in Tampico to buy some gasoline and were arrested by the Mexican authorities. They were soon released but the American admiral demanded that the Mexicans apologize by saluting our flag. Huerta refused this demand and by command of President Wilson our naval forces seized the city of Vera Cruz after a fight in which both Mexicans and Americans were killed. Although this was an act of war, President Wilson decided that it was not war and through the mediation of the "A. B. C. Powers"—Argentina, Brazil and Chile—a settlement of the difficulty was effected. Soon afterwards Huerta fled the country and Carranza became president.

President Wilson immediately recognized Carranza and this recognition infuriated another Mexican leader, Pancho Villa, who retaliated by raids across the border, culminating in the famous raid on Columbus, N. M., on March 9, 1916. This resulted in the punitive expedition, led by Gen. John J. Pershing. So April, 1916, seventy years after General Taylor entered Mexico, American troops were again on Mexican soil with hostile intent. Although Pershing penetrated some 400 miles into Mexico he never succeeded in catching up with the elusive Pancho, who slipped around his flank and made another quick dash across the border. By January, 1917, Pershing's force had withdrawn from Mexico.

But by this time there was a greater crisis at hand. Unrestricted submarine warfare had brought the United States and Germany to the verge of a break. Ambassador Gerard had been recalled from Germany and the German ambassador, Count von Bernstorff, was handed his passports. Suspension of intercourse between the two nations made war all but inevitable. Finally on April 2, 1917, the next great April episode in American history took place. President Wilson appeared before congress and read a message urging it to recognize the fact that a state of war with Germany already existed.

"We fight," he said, "for the rights of nations great and small and the privilege of men everywhere to choose their way of life and of obedience. The world must be made safe for democracy. We have no selfish ends to serve. We desire no conquest, no dominion. We are but one of the champions of the rights of mankind. We shall be satisfied when those rights have been made as secure as the faith and freedom of nations can make them. . . . To such a task we can dedicate our lives and our fortunes, everything that we are and everything that we have, with the pride of those who know that the day has come when America is privileged to spend her blood and her might for the principles that gave her birth and happiness and the peace which she has treasured."

And so on another April day America embarked upon the greatest war in which she had ever fought. On April 6, 1917, congress by a joint resolution declared that the issue of war forced on the country by Germany was accepted. And to the successful conduct of that war, all the resources of the United States of America were pledged.

Conoco Radio

Program Interesting

"My canary has circles under his eyes."

If you're curious to know why, tune in on the next Conoco Listeners' Hour. For that's the title of a song to be sung by the great artist, Miss Patricola, comedienne, who has played the various vaudeville circuits in this country and has recently completed a tour of England, Ireland and Scotland.

Peggy and Pat—the listeners' representatives—have announced that they will dedicate this program, 17th of the series, to the Northwest. Songs typical of that section will be featured by the Conoco orchestra and the Rondoliers.

The program will be transmitted in this territory by station KYW Chicago at 7:30 p. m.

Political Book Teems With Vital Facts

"Drifting Sands of Party Politics," written by the late Senator Oscar W. Underwood, sent to the News-Bulletin Editor as the gift of Mrs. Underwood. The book is full from cover to cover of its over 400 pages, with intimate and revealing sketches of "behind the scenes" activity in American government, and is well worthy of the attention of any citizen who wishes to be posted on the "why" of many important governmental policies of the period from Cleveland to Coolidge.

"Highly organized minorities" rule the land today, in the view of the author, and he points the dangers of such a condition. The growing tendency of Congress to centralize power in bureaus at Washington is strongly condemned and the true forces of the present government are graphically defined.
